PENNSYLVANIANS DISCUSS THE EFFECT OF QUAY'S VICTORY ON THE PRESIDEN-

TIAL QUESTION. Governor Daniel H. Hastings, of Pennsylvania, was at the Holland House yesterday. As everybody knows, Governor Hastings has just had a big political fight on his hands, and lost it. He is said at one time to have had Presidential aspirations, but it is generally conceded that his recent defeat has

When a card was sent to his room, he sent back word that he had nothing to say for publication. Later, in reply to an inqu.ry, he said that the dicket nominated at the convention held in Harrisburg would be supported solidly, despite the factional fight previous to the convention. however, as Senator Quay allowed the judicial candidates named by the combination which was fighting him to go through, and naturally they ill support the men of their choice.

There were a number of Pennsylvania politicians the city yesterday. Many of them had been to Boston to the Knight Templar conclave. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that Senator Quay victory was what the State wanted. The gossip is that this victory places beyond the hope of recall al. the delegates of Pennsylvania as far as ex-President Harrisce, is concerned. One Pittsburg man went back into ancient history and recalled some interesting dates in reference to the fight. He referred to the fact that Christopher Maree, of Pittsburg, one of the "combine" who supported Gov-ernor Hastings in the losing fight, helped secure the nomination of ex-President Harrison in 1892. Mr. Quay, while he supported the ticket, was not with the nomination. The speaker said that Mr. Quay's desire to have Harrison discarded as a possible candidate next year was known to Mr. Magee and others in the State, and that was one of the reasons that the issue was forced for the State control. It is said to have been the desire of Mr. Magee and his partners to throw the Pennsylvania State delegation to Mr. Harrison in the next National Convention of the Republican This seems out of the question now, and Mr. Quay's victory was looked upon by the Pennsylvania men as a good thing for Mr. Reed's chances. One man said

Mr. Quay can get the chairmanship of the Nanal Committee next year if he wants it. Congressman William Stone's speech in the Pennsyl-vania convention nominating him for State chairman was practically an announcement of the fact that he was after that place. It may be expected that Senator Quay will 'shy his castor' into the ring at almost any time now, and announce himself as candidate for that place, as such is his method of ocedure when he goes after a thing. His getting procedure when he goes after a thing. His getting that position will not be at all inspiring to Mr. Harrison or his friends, especially if Senator Quay should form an alliance with James S. Clarkson, of Iowa, who favors Senator Allison: Samuel Fessenden, of Connecticut, and other leavers over the country who think that they did not get enough out of the election of General Harrison as the Nation's chief executive. That will doubtless be the programme, and if Mr. Quay goes after the National charmanship it means the deathknell of Mr. Harrison's chances."

SENATOR FAULENER'S WORDS OF CHEER.

IF A CERTAIN NUMBER OF CONDITIONS ARE FULFILLED, THE DEMOCRATS WILL HAVE A CHANCE IN 1896.

Senator Charles J. Faulkner, of West Virginia was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel for a short time Senator Faulkner was chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee last thing in sight for the Democrats. He and Congress man Joseph W. Babcock, of Wisconsin, who was Postmaster-General of his protegé, Mr. Wilson, has soothed him, for when asked about the outlook for the Derr racy he replied:

"The hope for a Democratic victory in 1895 grows brighter every day. If the good times continue and men succeed in getting work, and the farmer gets a good price for his produce, and the merchant a good price for his goods, the past will be buried and the Democracy, which has weathered the storm, will stick to the men that stood steadily at the post when it looked blackest. Industrial conditions in West Virginia seem to be improving, and by next year we will be ready for the battle."

GUESTS AT LEADING HOTELS.

Saturday is usually a comparatively quiet day at the hotels, but yesterday was an exception, and many of the leading hotels were as full last night as they had been any night during the week. It has been a banner week for the hotels.

Everybody sought she'ter, but those who were caught in the first dash were wet clear through.

WET IN THE HOTEL DISTRICT. The vivid lightning and the crash of the storm made conversation in the hotels almost impossible. Those in the Imperial Hotel heard a tremendous crash of thunder and saw across the street a great flickering, wavering, blue flame shoot high into the air and then recede. The lightning had struck an electric light globe in front of a building and burned out the wires, but front of a building and burned out the wires, but left the insulation in such a manner that it flickered and spluttered in an uncertain manner for over a half-hour. Fortunately, the globe was strung far out from the building, and no material damage was done. While the storm was at its height the noise and generally weird effect were heightened by the clang of bells and the flash of sparks from the feet of galloping horses drag-gling fire engines through the street. Several alarms were sent in during the storm, and the

When they learned that the building had been damaged many of them returned to assist saving the stock on hand. The rain came do in torrents and the cellar, where the stock was largely kept, was flooded to a depth of several inches.

Two partially finished houses at Palisade-ave and Oak-st. were blown down and reduced to kindling wood. All over the north end of Hudson County trees were uprooted, sheds and barns blown down and the streets converted into miniature lakes by the flood of rain.

At Kossuth-st. and Palisade-ave., Union Hill, the roofs were torn from two buildings, but none of the occupants were hurt.

At Schuetzen Park, Union Hill, where a big German festival has been in progress for the last week, and was to conclude to-day, all the booths were blown down and completely wrecked. At a late hour last night a large force of carpenters were at work repairing the damage.

Mr. Babcock's prediction of a great Republican majority was fulfilled, and since then Mr. Fawkner has not said much.

He seemed to have recuperated somewhat when seen yesterday, and had a cheering word for the Democracy. Perhaps the elevation to the office of Postmaster-General of his protegé, Mr. Wilson, has soothed him, for when asked about the outlook for the Derror racy he replied:

The storm at Elizabeth was accompanied by a hurricane and rain. During the storm, which hurricane and rain. During the storm, which lasted half an hour, trees were uprooted and many signs and fences blown down. Some damage was caused to the wires of the New-York and New-Jersey Telephone Company, and the wires of the suburban electric light company were so affected that electric lamps were extinguished for an hour. The storm about the water front was particularly severe, and a number of small boats and loose lumber swept away.

Rockaway Beach was drenched last night for a full hour by the severest rainstorm ever seen there. The rain poured down in sheets, and during the rain lightning flashed continually and the peals of thun-Meissner's carousal was struck by lightning and set on fire, but the heavy rain extinguished the blaze before any considerable damage was caused. The kitchen of Deemling's Seashore Hotel was also struck, causing little damage.

The storm at Far Rockaway was accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning, one of which struck Meyer Foster's barn, at Wave Crest, right in the Four of the Ocean House. The building took fire, and an alarm was sent out, the firemen running through the streets with their apparatus knee deep in water. The barn was entirely destroyed, together with a quantity of harness, causing a loss of about '800. The horses and carriages in the barn were saved by the firemen. The property was insured.

In the storm last evening, at about 6:30, the ferry-boat Newburg, of the West Shore Railroad ferry, came into collision with an ice barge, and as a result several other boats, among them the G. W. Chapin, of the Forty-second-st. ferry, and several canal boats were more or less damaged.

The accident happened off Weehawken after the Newburg had left her slip for Harrison-st., this city. The ice barge crashed into the starboard bow of the Newburg, carrying away about twenty guardrail and siding for about fifty feet.

About a dozen women were in the cabin at the time, and twice as many men. As the ice barge was about to strike the Newburg, the passengers rushed from the forward cabin and sought safety in the men's cabin on the port side. Several of the women fainted, but soon revived. No one was injured, so

"Hefore I could get my heim to starboard, an ice barge, which was empty, came with terrific force against the starboard bow of the Newburg, crushing in the bulwarks, and causing the passengers in the women's cabin to stampede for safety, to the other side of the boat. After ascertaining that the Newburg was all right, I kept my course."

Captain Johnson said he had been a pilot for twenty-one years, and that he had never seen the weather so thick during a storm since 1867.

ITS ACTIVITY IS ALONG MANY LINES.

JERSEY CITY'S ADMIRABLE SOCIAL SETTLEMENT WAS FOUNDED AND DEVELOPED BY ONE

WOMAN-ITS VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS. The wonderful work that can be accomplished by one earnest woman in improving the social condi-tion of human kind is well exemplified by the successful results attained in little more than a single year through the energetic and beneficent efforts Miss Cornelia F. Bradford, the head worker of Whittier House, No. 174 Grand-st., Jersey This is a philanthropic institution, organized somewhat on the plan of the University settlements in New-York and other cities. Whittier House, how-ever, has distinctive features which make its work different in some respects from that of other similar institutions. It is situated in the midst of a densely populated district, and is the only social settlement in the State of New-Jersey. It aims to help all in need by "improving their circumstances, inspiring them with new motives and higher ideals, and fitting them for the responsibilities and privileges of life." It is Christian, but not denominational, and its managers will gladly and heartily co-operate with all humane persons who seek to improve mankind. It does not seek to do the work of the Church, but rather to do that which the Church itself cannot weil undertake.

ago, large numbers of men, women and children have been brought under its benign influences, and greatly benefited socially, morally and materially while it has established a free kindergarten, sewing school, mothers' club and many other importandepartments.

ITS PROGRESS RAPID

The growth of Whittier House has been phenomenal. Miss Bradford, who is a sister of the Rev. Dr. Amory H. Bradford, of Montelair, and a graduate of Olivet College, started alone in a small room, the free use of which had been given to her tional Church, in the neighborhood. In this little room, which came to be known as Whittier House Office, Miss Bradford formed her plans for enlarging her field of labor. For several months the work consisted in becoming acquainted with needy neighbors by house-to-house visitation; listening to stories of sorrow and suffering; helping people to help themselves by finding work for them; selling at reduced prices, clothing which had been given for the purpose; lending small sums of money on The gratuitous use of a larger room being secured, sewing classes were started; afternoon teas were held, and other helpful features introduced. Finally, through the gen erous assistance of benevolent people, who had come to recognize the usefulness of Miss Bradford's work, the stately old mansion of the late Mayor Clark, of Jersey City, was secured as a permanent home for the institution, and named Whittier House, in honor of the poet, John G. Whittier, for whom Miss Bradford had much admiration on acunt of their intimate acquaintance.

Whittier House is a lofty, double three-story brick structure with a mansard roof, situated i what is now a tenement-house district, but which was formerly an aristocratic neighborhood. It is about 50 feet square, and has a large yard in which there are a swing and croquet grounds. When Miss Bradford took possession of it, she had only and a small desk, all second hand. Since then the women of arious church congregations in Jer-City, Montclair and other towns where Miss Bradford has addressed audiences in behalf of her work have furnished the building throughout in comfortable and substantial manner, Mrs Griffiths, of Jersey City, who has since become sort of gedmother to the institution, contributing liberally from her own means.

THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS.

The work carried on by Miss Bradford and her now somewhat extensive staff of assistants at Whittier House includes a kindergarten, which occupies the spacious parlor of the old mansion, which, as a lecture-room, has a seating capacity for 186 persons; classes in German, elecution, literature, art, reading, singing, plane instruction, dressmaking, sewing, dancing etc. There are also frequent tures on physiology and hygiene by Dr. Florence De Hart, who was graduated in the class of '93 of the Woman's Medical College of the New-York Infirmary, and who is the resident physician of Whittier House; a penny provident fund, and amount of damage, the full extent of which is as yet unknown. Six horses belonging to N. Mehrish hof & Co., brickmakers, at Little Ferry, were in their stalls in the stable when lightning struck the building, almost entirely demolishing it, and instantly killing the horses. Charles Mershal's barn and the house of the Ridgefield Park Hose Company were struck by lightning and completely destroyed. Two houses in Hackensack were also struck by lightning and badly damaged.

Giles Everson and Alfred Ackerman, of River Edge, drove under a tree not far from the railroad station to escape the heavy downpour of rain. Suddenly there was a flash and the tree was struck by lightning. The horse was knocked down, and by lightning and badly damaged. Suddenly there was a flash and the tree was struck by lightning. The horse was knocked down, and by lightning the light of the pawnshop, a chattel business was begun, in which amounts not exceeding in any one case were loaned on household goods in Jersey City at 6 per cent interest. In this business only one beneficiary has failed promptly to repay a loan, but in that case the money is coming in surely, though slowly, and the mortgage will soon be fully satisfied. A Lincoin Club, a Young Citizens' Club and a Humane Club are now being started.

PAMAGE IN ELIZABETH. Louise Alcutt, mothers'; Agassiz, newsboys'; cro-

Among the other clubs of which mention has been omitted is a Lend-a-Hand Club, composed of girls who send flowers and pictures to patients in hospitals, and a flower mission for the distribution of flowers in tenement-houses and hospitals. who also compose a class in botany, which is taught by Mrs. E. H. Davey, president of the club. who also compose a class in botany, which is taught by Mrs. E. H. Davey, president of the club. It is the desire of the institution ultimately to have these and other mothers who may hereafter join the organization become useful members of the Federation of Women's Clubs of America.

Whittier House was carried on mainly as a woman's settlement until recently, but the co-operation of men is now sought, and several male boarders have been admitted to the institution. The first of these to be regularly installed is a student from Princeton College, who not only acts as a secretary for Miss Bradford, but also pays a stipulated price for his meals and lodging. Mr. Baker, a well-known musician, has engaged board for the summer, besides paying for which he will give gratuitous instruction in music. Percy Alden, warden of the famous Mansfield House, in London, which is the largest social settlement house in Great Britain, who came to this country not long ago, has lived at the Whittier House, Miss. Bradford having formerly been a student at Mansfield House. Mr. Alden, who has returned to England, has a constituency of over 135,000 persons, mainly of dock and gas men in Canning Town, a squalled and turbulent quarter, situated in the extreme eastern end of London, beyond the notorious Whitechapel district. Mr. Alden was amazed at the rapid progress and magnitude of social settlement work in this city. He said, however, that on account of its cosmopolitan character it was widely different from his work as he had to deal only with Hritons, while the workers here were brought in constant contact with natives of every clime.

INTERESTED WORKERS.

Miss Bradford and her assistants are now in the midst of their summer work. A few days ago they gave an excursion to about thirty newsboys of J sey City, who are members of the Whittler House Newsboys' Club. All the clubs are to be taken upon day excursions at different intervals, and ten orfp pled children are to be sent to the country for two day excursions at different intervals, and ten crippled children are to be sent to the country for two weeks, their expenses being paid with money realized from a cantal given by public-spirited women in Upper Montelair. Among those who are actively interested in Whittier House is Poormaster John Hewitt, of Jersey City, who is in full sympathy with the institution. Miss Bradford emphasizes the fact that her enterprise is in no sense a charity. The several residents of the institution, both male and female, all pay a fair price for board, and all persons who avail themselves of class instruction must pay a tuition fee of 50 cents for ten lessons. While her methods are religious, they are not devotional, prayer-meetings being left for the churches, so that it is possible for persons of all classes and creeds, be they Jew or Gentle, to join in the exercises of the institution without restraint.

The Hoard of Officers of Whittler House is composed of the following men and women: Preside it, The Rev. Dr. Amory H. Bradford, Montelair; veepresident, the Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, Westfield; secretary, the Rev. Cornelius H. Patton, Westfield; treasurer, W. Jay Hunt, Jersey City; directors—Amory H. Bradford, W. R. Richards, Cornelius H. Patton, W. Jay Hunt, Z. K. Pangborn, Stanley White, John H. Parsons, John L. Scudder, E. T. Tomlinson and James Eefis; Auxiliary Committee—Miss Adeline Van Winkle, Dr. Madana F. De Hart, Mrs. Phoebe Griffith and Mrs. A. J. Newbury. The resident workers are Cornelia F. Bradford (Olivet College), head worker; Louise G. Patrant (Harnard, '93), Florence Corliss (Smith, '93) and Dr. Florence De Hart (Woman's Medical College of the New-York Infirmary, '33). A call for the "sympathetic attention" of the public to the Whittier House has been issued by the directors, Gifts of Cothing, provisions, etc., may be sent to the Wouse, No. 17 Grand-st., Jersey City, Money should be sent to the treasurer. ### NOTES AND NEWS.

Henry G. Burleigh still continues to talk about preventing the renomination of State Treasurer Colvin, and rumors are affoat that the State cash for the next three years will be handled by his friend, ex-Congressman Weaver, of Plattsburg. Mr. Burleigh is a hustler and makes things lively, but there is a general feeling that, after all, Colvin will succeed himself. The basis of Burleigh's campaign amounts to this: At a dinner given in honor of Congressman Foote's nomination at Plattsburg last year, Colvin, with others, enlivened his post-prandial remarks with a few anecdotes that he would hardly repeat in his Sunday-school. It was such a speech as one occasionally hears at a "stag" party when the wine is flowing freely and the hour is late. Probably no one would have thought much about it had not Mr. Burleigh, who was a candidate for Congressman against Foote, and whose defeat was attributed to the action of the Warren County delegates which Colvin controlled, in going to Foote's support at the critical moment called attention to the matter. That is substantially all there is to the fight against Colvin. The politicians do not take much stock in it, for with all his peculiarities the State Treasurer is a loyal, hard-working Republican and, at heart, a good fellow. as one occasionally hears at a "stag" party

According to all accounts the convention of the Ist Chautauqua Assembly District, held at Jamestown last Tuesday, was anything but a creditable affair. H. E. Bonsted, of Stow, writes to The Tribune that it was a "disgrace to the party," and adds: "The final action of the convention, if allowed to stand, can do nothing but harm. The action of some of the primaries was disreputable, dishonest and fraudulent, and, I believe, can be so proven to the satisfaction of all right-thinking men. The cold facts are that men who were formerly prominent in the Republican party, who have lately been silent or with the enemy, succeeded by unfair or dishonorable methods in capturing the majority of the delegates, and thus controlling the convention and dictating the nomination. I think it can be proven to the satisfaction of all unprejudiced men that illegal votes decided the contest, and that if the present rulers are allowed to continue this district will be solid for the Boss. That, I take it, is the whole secret of the late scandalous proceedings which outrivalled anything which has occurred in this State. In my opinion this contest concerns the Republican party of the State and Nation. I believe I only voice the sentiments of a majority of the voters of the district, and as we were not allowed to do so at the convention, we take the only method we have to place our cause before the people. Will The Tribune help us in our ju-cause?" To refuse the nomination to Mr. Roberts." says

"To refuse the nomination to Mr. Roberts," says The Syracuse Herald," "would create a bitter feel-

Another candidate for State Senator in the Herkimer district is William C. Prescott, though he has not yet raised his right hand to heaven and sworn that he will also support Mr. Miller for United States Senator.

"Bossism," says "The Buffalo News," "does not suit Americans. The bossing of an English King proved that." Right, but why go away back to the Revolution for evidence, when the case of Hill or Croker or Sheehan or Murphy is right in the back yard? Local color is desirable in such illustrations.

This appears in the last issue of "The Age," the organ of the colored people: "The Blaine Republican Tub, a social and political organization of the old Xith Assembly District, in which Mayor's Secre-tary Job E. Hedges is a central figure, has blackballed Mr. Edward S. Flow, one of the prominent politicians in the district, apparently because he is not a white man. We do not like this sort of business. The Blaine Club should get on another tack. It is sailing in shoal water. There is no valid reason why Mr. Flow should have been blackballed." Mr. Fortune is hardly fair in his presentation of the case. True, Mr. Flow was blackballed, but in the face of protests from over two-thirds of the sixty-five members present, including Assemblyman Pavey and John Z. Milhoilland, who spoke as strongly against the absurd opposition to Mr. Flow as Mr. Fortune himself would have done had he been present. signed from the State Club, nor from the Board of Directors. This fact has already been stated about birectors. This fact has already been stated about six times in The Tribune, and it is not our intention to repeat it more than ninety-five times altogether. Yes, it is true that Mr. Pavey resigned the position of secretary because he was not able to attend to the duties, but he is still an active life member of the club, and thoroughly in sympathy with its aims and purposes. "The Mount Vernon Record" comes out for Bradford Rhoades for Senator, declaring that he pos-sesses all the requirements for the office. Mr. Rhoades says that he will not fight for the nomination, but he will make a vigorous canvass for the election if the party's representatives choose him as their candidate. Meantime J. Irving Burns, "he lay low," apparently, but is doing a heap of effective work to capture the honor. Respect for the customs and traditions of the party count for nothing with the machine leaders where innovations on the established rights of the people will best conserve their schemes. No part of the Ist Assembly District of Onondaga County is in the city of Syracuse, yet that Assembly convention was held there by order of the bosses and ex-Assemblyman Charles C. Cole nominated for reelection. It was a new and startling departure, but the convention, a large part of which was made up of substitutes, under the eyes of John S. Kenyon and Francis Hendricks, voted unanimously for and Francis Hendricks, voted unanimously for everything on the prepared slate. "The Syracuse Post" says of this policy: "The principle of home rule is pretty firmly fixed in the minds of the American people. A good many Americans living in Onondaga County and not at all pleased with the way in which this principle has practically been deway in which this principle has practically been de-nied them. They would like to have something to say about who shall be caucus and election officers in their own townships, who shall call their con-ventions and fix the time and place for them, and they do not relish the idea of having the whole mat-ter taken out of their hands by men who do not even live in the same Assembly district. If the pres-ent style of doing things continues, it will be in or-der next year to dispense entirely with caucuses and conventions in Onondaga County and allow a self-chosen committee, representing the local machine, to nominate candidates without going to the trouble of calling the delegates together."

PRAYERS FOR THE POPE.

THE DELIVERANCE OF THE "CAPTIVE OF THE VATICAN" TO BE ASKED FOR.

A DAY SET APART TO OFFSET THE ITALIAN FESTIVAL-SIMILAR ACTION BY CATHOLICS

the hand of Archbishop Kain and addressed to all the Italian monarch. The circular recites the incidents that led to the deprivation of the Pontiff of temporal power twenty-five years ago, and tells of temporal power twenty-five years ago, and tells of the subsequent humiliation of the "captive of the Vatican." The Archbishop also reminds the priests of the archdiocese that as the Italian festival to be held September 20 is to glorify in the downfall of His Holiness it should be made the day of special prayer by all the children of the Church.

The Rev. Father Coyle, Chancellor of the Cathedral, states that the circular does not, in express terms, ask for the restoration of temporal power to the Pope, but it is something new in church decrees. It is understood that similar decrees have been issued throughout the world, and all are inspired from the Holy See.

The Rev. James M. Connolly, secretary to Archbishop Corrigan, told a Tribune reporter last evening that no action similar to that of Archbishop Kain, of St. Louis, had yet been taken by Archbishop Corrigan. In explanation of the circular letter issued by the Archbishop in St. Louis, Father

Connolly said:

It is almost certain that Archbishop Kain's example will soon be followed throughout the world. It is yet early for such letters to be sent out, and Archbishop Corrigan is sure to take some action later, although I do not know whether or not he will send out a letter. This is the twenty fift anniversary of the victory of the Italians over the Pope, and among the more radical Italians there is a desire to commemorate the event by a formal celebration. The conservative Italians, however, are opposed to arouse the Ill-will of the Church, as a celebration would probably have that effect. Every year it is customary for us to offer up prayer for the deliverance of the Pope, and Archbishop Corrigan always sends the Pope a cable dispatch of condolence. This year's recognition of the event by the Church will doubtless be more marked than usual because of the probable celebration by the Italian monarch.
